

What Parents Value most about Bellevue Christian School

On the spur of the moment, we decided to ask our parents what they valued most about Bellevue Christian School. Here are some of their comments...

"There is probably a long list that I could write, but what I value can be told in a few words: My children are HAPPY and positive. They like to go to school in the mornings and when I pick them up in the afternoon, they tell me all about their day and they just love it!"

"I value the teacher-to-student ratio, the Christ-centered curriculum and the commitment to excellence that remains consistent from year to year."

"I just wanted to note that as a parent, I appreciate the school and its values. I appreciate the fact that teachers and administrative personnel are conscientious and very helpful."

"The most valuable aspect of Bellevue is the Christ-based education they provide. The students are not only taught Bible education but also how to bring Christian attributes into their lives, not only through curriculum but also by the examples of teachers and administration."

"It's nice for us as parents to drop our kids off in the morning knowing that the school will help our children during the day and follow through with morals, values, manners and respect for others that we teach our children at home. We love bringing our children to Bellevue. It's a wonderful, caring and loving atmosphere here, and we wish everyone could realize how important it is for our children to get a good education. Keep up the good work!"

"We value the quality Christian family atmosphere and the approachability of the staff. They give immediate attention to any of our concerns. And we value the priority of Christian curriculum at Bellevue."

"The teachers care deeply about the quality of education that each child receives. They are greatly interested in reaching each individual child and developing their talents but also take the time and respect to understand each child's weak areas. Through encouragement and their efforts, my children have excelled in areas of interest as well as found pleasure in those not-so-interesting subjects."

"I deeply value the fact that not only is my child learning (exceeding) her educational goals, but she is gaining a knowledge and deeper relationship with Jesus Christ."

"I value the curriculum. Our child's ability to read is amazing."

"I appreciate the dedicated staff and faculty that truly put the children first. I also value the emphasis on education and the development of Christian values. My kids actually look forward to coming to school."

"I value the level and content of education my children are receiving here and the importance of Bible used in each subject."
