Administrator's Column

What's the #1 source of encouragement to read books for fun? According to Scholastic, for 82% of kids, it's their parents and other adult family members! Families can have a huge impact on reading practice—and reading success! Most families stop reading aloud to children after age 5, but the vast majority of kids enjoy hearing books read aloud well past that age. For older students, consider reading separately but joining together to discuss books.

Enter His gates with thanksgiving
and His courts with praise;
give thanks to Him and praise His name.

For the Lord is good and love endures forever;
His faithfulness continues through all generations.
